FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Poem Written by Mrs. Ellen Davenport

Eighteen hundred and fifty-five,
Not many of us are now alive.
Who remember the day of our Dot's birth,
And whose hearts were so full of love.

He was just another of Waterford's boys,
Who helped in all kinds of ways,
He went to school and did his best,
And then one day he married the best.

And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best.

And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best.

And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best.

And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best,
And then one day he married the best.

What About Taxes?

A Few Comparisons and Suggestions

This is a time when we must see that every dollar we spend in taxes shall bring one hundred cents in value and save as many of them as possible.

Many of the expenses of every town are its roads and schools. Can the appropriation for roads be deeply cut? "Yes," you say? But what happens when cars are met? The roads are broken by drifts in the winter? Taxes are saved, but the people are not satisfied and the town officers are blamed. Also, the laborers are deprived of work and thus hardship comes upon them and their families. It would seem then, that it is unwise to cut this appropriation to any great extent.

But the schools are another matter, here we can save a penny! Let us consider how we may reduce expenses, keeping in mind the one great reason for their existence, our boys and girls.

We have so often, "when I went to school," and truly they were "good old times," I remember them perfectly. Then some young girl or boy who had a "pull" with the board was hired to "keep school" for perhaps a dollar and a half and "board around". The terms were short and might as well have been with such teaching (if) and with the textbooks that were furnished by the parents. As for the district, if the school was speaking of rural schools, got out the wood and fitted it for the stove with no expense, the women met and cleaned the schoolhouse, the supplies consisted of a slate and pencil furnished by the parents for each child and little else.

Thus you see the school tax in those good old days was small and so was the road tax for the faithful oxen or old horses rarely got stuck in the mud when they traveled fast enough to shake the sturdy wagons to pieces over the rough roads. As for winter time, why people mostly stayed at home or rather took the fun on the sled and the town paid nothing to keep the road open.

But those times are gone for now we must have reasonably smooth roads for our summer travel and plowed ones in the winter that may ride in comfort. We have heated, closed cars. We cannot go back to Dobbin and the oxen.

Times have changed for the schools, but we can go back to the well loved old days in many ways and give our small people up-to-date instruction with a reduced appreciation if the taxpayers really want to do so.

Is there any reason, in this well wooded section of our state why our men should be so busy cutting wood for the schoolhouse for this year of hard times, should not give the stumpage? Heard and Seen at Advertiser Office

The Jefferson-Rafter Co. want to hire and fancy stitchers. See ad in this issue.

Chester W. Thurston has announced that he is a candidate for the office of selectman. See notice in this issue.

A Caroline Denison brought in a brown mittion she found on Main street near James Fawcett's shop, Monday afternoon.

A child's green pocket book containing miscellaneous articles, was picked up on Tucker street, Tuesday, and left at this office.

George E. Emerson will be a candidate for road commissioner in the Norway Village Corporation. See his announcement in this issue.

A pair of boys' gray mittens, nice and warm, were found on Thursday by Albert Fawcett, and passed along to our collection. Owner may have them by calling at this office.

Ernest C. Murch, foreman in our job work department, lost a pig skin glove on Main street, Monday evening and has an ad in this issue regarding the loss of same. E. C. says he wishes the finder (if said has been found) would return same to him or call for the one he has, so someone could have a pair of gloves.

Our life long friend, Judge A. E. Herrick of Bethel has passed to the unknown beyond. The passing brings to mind the just tribute paid him during his life by Judge Morrill:

"Judge Herrick is one of the ablest lawyers in Maine. Lacking perhaps that cringing eloquence that moves juries to laughter or to tears, his profound knowledge of the law is so well recognized that his rulings on contested legal points are sought by attorneys all over New England. If he would work as successfully for himself as he does for others he would win fame and a fortune."

E. W. Howe, Atholton, Kan., editor, says:

"No man sincerely believes honesty is the best policy who has not been whipped for dishonesty. All honesty is established by practical discovery that it is finally more profitable and less costly than dishonesty. All wisdom is established by ventures into folly, as health rules are established by suffering from ill health. How did you learn to properly spell words? By spelling them wrong, of course, and being laughed at. When you were born you didn't know anything. What have you learned from experience? What you learn hereafter will come in the same way."

The old man of the shop had a birthday, Feb. 10, and was remembered by a once young and gay stenographer:

Happy birthday!
It is an interesting coincidence that my first employer, a lawyer, was born February 11th. My second—yours—February 10th, and my third, an editor, too, on February 10th. My own birthday is February 9th. Now that I've lost the position I held for many years, all I have to do is pick out someone born the 10th or 11th of February and move in with my note book and cracker.

Enclosed in the letter was an illustrated pictorial four page folder and on it in flaming red ink, viz:

"When you can count the stripes on all the colors."
When you can count the stars up in the blue."
When you can count the fish down in the ocean."
When you can count the Birthday Wishes I am sending you."
The old man is seventy-seven; little peevish, bald headed and ramrod shouldered, but thanks just the same.

Camp Fire Gathering

Patriotic Orders Enjoy Evening Together

A very happy gathering of the past week at the Camp Fire at Lyman Hall, which brought together approximately 150 people, with the members of Joshua L. Chamberlain Camp, Sons of Veterans and its Auxiliary, Eliza and the G. A. R. and Ladies of the G. A. R. Circle, and the former Women's Relief Association, gathered for a Camp Fire gathering. War veterans were able to attend, George Seavey of Norway and William Plummer of South Paris.

A fine supper was served with Mrs. Emma Swan as chairman of the committee. The tables were very attractive, the only decorations being flags in the standers. During the supper hour, an orchestra of four pieces played selections. Miss Rutha Sharon, Edwin Barker, Harlan Holman and Ralph Dunham made up the orchestra. The program which followed was arranged by Mrs. Aris Huff, Mrs. George Buck, Mrs. Mary Kimball, Mrs. Addie Lovejoy. Selection by the orchestra; address of welcome by Mrs. Meale M. Brown, president of the Daughters; prayer, Rev. E. B. Telleys, South Paris; response by the orchestra; singing: two old time songs by a chorus, who wore old time bonnets and paisley shawls, then the men all sang hats and outwore.

Remarks by Dr. Charles L. Buck, Commander of the Maine Department, Sons of Union Veterans, who introduced the speaker of the evening, the Rev. W. W. Lyon, of the Norway Methodist church, who is well informed on Civil War history, and as he spoke of some incidents, he was interrupted several times by the two old comrades, as they recalled some of the battles mentioned. Little Miss Martha Hosmer gave a fine vocal solo, followed with a piano selection; Mrs. Esther Tower Anderson gave the humorous character sketch "The Ball of Carrot Corner", by special request, and as always called forth laughter and applause. For an encore she gave a humorous sketch of the Misses Margaret, Michie and Frances McAllister sang "Washington". Elton Brown followed with a black face skit and song and for an encore sang "When Your Hair has Turned to Silver".

The chorus gave two old time songs, followed by an orchestral selection. The closing number was a patriotic tableau arranged by Mrs. Huff. Miss Mildred Huff as "Columbia", was surrounded by the Red, white and blue, with Mrs. Myrtle Bell, Mrs. Etta Jacobs, Mrs. Clara Jordan as the Red, Mrs. Edna Corey as the Blue and Miss Frances McAllister, Mrs. Fannie Monk and Miss Elizabeth Noyes as the White, who were kneeling about her in the shape of a triangle. A male quartet composed of Elton L. Brown, Oniel Brown, Clyde Corey and Ernest Moores sang patriotic songs. The representatives of the different war and patriotic organizations took their places. These included Frank Lovejoy as the Revolutionary patriot; Neil Brown as the 1812 soldier; William Plummer, the Civil War soldier; James Harvey, the Spanish War soldier; Mrs. Mary Kimball, the Red Cross; Mrs. Evis Cook, the Salvation Army; Alfred Monk, the World War; Mrs. Sadie Layman, the Gold Star Mother. Taps were played by Master Carlton Dyer, small son of Alfred J. Dyer, World War Veteran. At the close, the Lord Jesus Spangler Banner. The tableau was very beautiful and well carried out.

A social hour followed and the orchestra furnished music for those who cared to dance.
